

Turlough O'Carolan

- 1670 - 1738

(born in County Meath, Ireland; died in County Roscommon, Ireland)

- Went blind at the age of 18, due to smallpox
- After this, he was apprenticed for three years to a harper, which was a common profession for boys who were blind
- Traveled all around Ireland (with a horse and guide) for almost 50 years, composing and performing as a harper
  - Became one of Ireland's most famous composers
- Most of his work survived through aural tradition, as publishing music was not common during O'Carolan's life
- His compositions include O'Carolan's Air, Fanny Power, Eleanor Plunkett, and O'Carolan's Concerto, among many others
